ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It has been ten years since the appearance of the first inventory of San Jose's historical and architectural heritage. This current inventory would not have been possible without the combined efforts of numerous people, especially the San Jose Historic Landmarks Commissioners of the last ten years. The 1985 Historic Landmarks Commission would like to acknowledge the contributions of:

Helen Arbuckle
James M. Arbuckle
Bonnie Bamburg
Irwin Cohen
James P. Delgado
Frances Fox
Lupe Garcia
Eleanor Giacalone
Mary Gottschalk

We would also like to express our thanks to the City of San Jose and the Staff and secretarial support that enabled the completion of this document.

DEDICATION

We dedicate this volume to the businesspeople, real estate developers, and owners whose pride in San Jose's historic structures has led to the restoration and rehabilitation of our heritage buildings, breathing new life into them for the enjoyment and benefit of present and future San Joseans.

SAN JOSE'S HISTORIC RESOURCES: AN INVENTORY

Background

This document is the result of the efforts of many people over the last several years. In 1977, a comprehensive survey was made of the City's central planning area, including the Central Business District, to identify historically and architecturally significant buildings or structures. The year-long study identified some 1800 buildings and structures, 300 of which were eventually to make up the "Official Survey of Historic Places" within the City. Ultimately, the structures were to be added to the list of approved City landmarks.

Subsequently, it was realized that methods of classifying the resources identified in the previous study but not included as official City landmarks should be developed. In addition, the resources should be shown on maps for appropriate City use. In 1979-1980, the process of reclassifying and mapping the central planning area's historical and architectural resources was carried out by the firm of Urban/Rural Conservation under contract to the San Jose's Parks and Recreation Department.

In 1981, the San Jose Historic Landmarks Commission decided to make the Urban/Rural Conservation document more comprehensive by including within it city-wide resources identified in other surveys, such as the Santa Clara County Heritage Resource Inventory. This inventory is the result of that effort.

It is important to keep in mind that this historic resources inventory does not include all of San Jose's fine historic and architectural resources. Many structures have never been surveyed. It is hoped that, over time, these resources will be recognized for inclusion in this document. The process of additions and/or revisions to this inventory is discussed in another section of this report.

Purpose

The primary purpose of this document is to identify for various City departments those historic and architectural resources that should receive careful scrutiny during land use and development planning. The City's Planning Department considers requests for rezonings, planned development permits, site development permits, use permits, variances, and tentative maps; and the Neighborhood Preservation Department processes building permits and demolition permits.

Under City policy, permits processed by the Department of City Planning must receive environmental review. This was the primary impetus for the creation of this inventory. Environmental review is presently undertaken by the Department of City Planning, which operates in accordance with the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA). The environmental review staff should consult this document to determine if any proposed project will directly or indirectly impact the resources listed in this inventory.

Permits to alter or demolish structures within the City of San Jose are issued by the Building Division of the Neighborhood Preservation Department. Generally, these permits do not receive environmental review. Thus, it is important for Building Division staff to check this inventory to determine whether structures proposed to be altered or demolished are listed. If a structure is listed, the project should be referred to the Planning Department for environmental review before the issuance of any requested permits.

Other departments within the City, from time to time, undertake public projects that may affect the resources that this inventory seeks to protect. As with the Planning and Neighborhood Preservation Departments, other City departments should consult this document to determine whether historic resources are in or adjacent to each project area.

Indirect impacts on historic structures or districts should also be considered. Planning and Neighborhood Preservation staff should take into account the historic character of an area or neighborhood and discourage the building of structures that are out of scale for this area, constructed of inappropriate materials, or architecturally incompatible.

Aside from the City's permit process, there are other uses for this document. A variety of City departments can refer to it in response to inquiries about the development potential of properties, and members of the public can utilize this inventory as an historic resource document.

On March 18th, 1986 the Council of the City of San Jose adopted Resolution 58957 approving the use of the Historic Resources Inventory as a reference guide for land use and development planning and authorized the Historic Landmarks Commission to maintain the Inventory. In approving the Inventory as a historic resources reference guide, the Council identified that:

- o The Historic Landmarks Commission of the City of San Jose has among its duties and functions the encouragement of the preservation of historic landmarks and sites within the City of San Jose; and
- o A procedure has been established under the Historic Preservation Ordinance of the San Jose Municipal Code whereby certain landmarks or districts within the City of San Jose may be designated as "historic", and thereafter subject to a requirement that a special permit be obtained prior to any construction, alteration, remodeling, demolition or other similar activity; and
- o There are structures and properties within the City of San Jose which have not been designated as historic structures or historic districts, but can be identified as having possible historic significance; and
- o The Historic Landmarks Commission has identified a number of such structures and properties which have been compiled into a Historic Resources inventory; and
- o In order to further the purposes of the Historic Preservation Ordinance of the Municipal Code, it is appropriate to recognize said Historic Resources Inventory as a resource document which can be used as a foundation for future designation of historic landmarks and/or districts, and as a guide for City Staff and the public in reviewing and evaluating proposed development on sites identified therein.

ADDITIONS OR REVISIONS

This Inventory is intended to be dynamic and to change as other structures are added or revisions are made to the classifications of existing listings. The Inventory shall be made available to the public and to City Departments for use as appropriate, including as a resource in conducting environmental and project review of requests for demolition permits and for land use and development approvals.

The Historic Landmarks Commission and its Staff are authorized by the City Council to maintain the inventory, adding and deleting listings as appropriate, and continue to utilize the Inventory as a tool in recommending formal designation of the historic landmarks or districts.

Additions to or deletions from the inventory can be requested by the property owner or the community at large. Requests should be made in writing to the San Jose Historic Landmarks Commission. Following the Commission's evaluation, the City Council and various City departments utilizing the document will be informed of the changes recommended by the Commission. Revisions to the existing classifications will be made as necessary by the Commission and distributed to appropriate City departments.

Requests should be directed to:

Historic Preservation Officer, Department of City Planning
City of San Jose, 400 City Hall Annex
801 North First Street
San Jose, CA 95110
(408) 277-4576

ORGANIZATION OF INVENTORY

In the inventory itself, structures are listed numerically by street address, and the streets are listed alphabetically. Each listing is followed by a notation that identifies the classification of the structure.

These classifications are broken into two categories. The first category lists the structures and sites that have been included on Federal, State and City of San Jose listings as designated landmarks. The second category includes structures and sites identified in the County of Santa Clara inventory and additional property identified by the City of San Jose Historic Landmarks Commission as having historic significance. The classifications are as follows:

Designated Structures and Sites

NR	A structure, site or district listed on the National Register of Historic Places administered by the Secretary of the Interior, Washington, D.C.
NRD-C	National Register District-Contributing structure/site
NRD-NC	National Register District-Noncontributing structure/site
SL	State Landmark (a structure or site designated by the State of California through the State Historic Preservation Office, Sacramento)
CL	City Landmark (a structure or site designated by the San Jose City Council in accordance with Ordinance #20884)

Significant Structures and Sites

ENR	Eligible for National Register Listing (appears to meet the NR criteria, but further historic research is necessary)
CO-INV	A listing on Santa Clara County Historical Heritage Resource Inventory of the County Historical Heritage Commission
CS	Contributing Structure/Site (a structure that contributes significantly to the historic fabric of the community and, in some cases, to a certain neighborhood)
IS	Identified Structure (further evaluation of the historic or architectural significance of the structure should be undertaken by the property owner)
BLANK	Addresses without notations are part of a conservation area

CRITERIA FOR EVALUATION

Criteria for evaluating eligibility for the National Register of Historic Places are as follows:

The quality of significance in American history, architecture, archaeology and culture is present in districts, sites, buildings, structures, and objects that possess integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association, and:

1. that are associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history; or
2. that are associated with the lives of persons significant in our past; or
3. that embody the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction, or that represent a significant and distinguishable entity whose components may lack individual distinction; or
4. that have yielded, or may be likely to yield, information important in prehistory or history.

Ordinarily cemeteries, birthplaces, or graves of historic figures, properties owned by religious institutions or used for religious purposes, structures that have been moved from their original locations, reconstructed historic buildings, properties primarily commemorative in nature, and properties that have achieved significance within the past 50 years shall not be considered eligible for the National Register. However, such properties will qualify if they are integral parts of districts that do meet the criteria or if they fall within the following categories:

1. a religious property deriving primary significance from architectural or artistic distinction or historical importance;
2. a building or structure removed from its original location but which is significant primarily for architectural value, or which is the surviving structure most importantly associated with a historic event,
3. a birthplace or grave of an historic figure of outstanding importance if there is no other appropriate site or building directly associated with his productive life,
4. a cemetery that derived its primary significance from graves of persons of transcendent importance, from age, from distinctive design features, or from association with historic events,
5. a reconstructed building when accurately executed in a suitable environment and presented in a dignified manner as part of a restoration master plan, and when no other building or structure with the same association has survived,

6. a property primarily commemorative in intent if design, age, tradition, or symbolic value has invested it with its own historical significance;
7. a property achieving significance within the past 50 years if it is of exceptional importance.

A property nominated for City Historic Landmark status must be 30 years old and must meet at least one of the following criteria:

1. can be identified or associated with persons, eras, or events that have contributed to local, regional, State, or national history, heritage, or culture in a distinctive, significant, or important way;
2. can be identified or associated with a distinctive, significant or important work or vestige of architectural style, design, or method of construction;
3. can be identified or associated with an important work or vestige of a master architect, builder, artist, or craftsman;
4. has high artistic merit;
5. comprises as a totality, a distinctive, significant, or important work or vestige whose component parts may lack the same attributes;
6. is likely or substantially likely to yield information of value about history, architecture, culture, or aesthetics;
7. provides for existing and future generations an example of the physical surroundings in which past generations lived or worked.

Those resources that were not judged to qualify for either National Register or City Historic Landmark designation were then evaluated using similar standards recommended by the State Office of Historic Preservation Survey Field Guidebook. Considerations include architectural quality and integrity, age, rarity of building type or scale, and the relationship to the surrounding environment. Special emphasis was placed on a building's contribution to a streetscape. Groups of buildings, linked by scale, materials, building type or other features, provide important aesthetic or historical statements about neighborhoods in the past. These buildings often provide the setting for more important structures as well. Such groupings of building which constituted neighborhoods were placed within a "conservation area" category. Individual structures add visual richness and character to the City's streets and constitute the major contributions to the "conservation areas". Such structures themselves may be eligible for listing on the National Register. Entire conservation areas within the Central Planning area were identified, and those buildings that were the major contributors to the areas were given another designation as potential National Register candidates. The buildings in both categories contribute to the historic and architectural fabric of San Jose.

CONSERVATION AREA DESCRIPTION

Conservation areas are significant because their continuity reflects a particular period of design or architectural style. Significance is derived from a grouping of structures viewed as a whole rather than from the importance of an individual building. The historic significance of these areas generally reflects developmental patterns of growth in the city rather than associations with individuals or events.

The areas described represent neighborhoods within the central planning area containing significant historical and architectural structures. Each area is defined in terms of its physical boundaries and not its historical development. The distinctions were made primarily on the basis of similar style and period of design or on distinct physical separation between areas such as major thoroughfares and rivers. The conservation areas described are listed in the order in which they were reviewed and are not ranked as to importance.

Downtown Commercial District

The San Jose Downtown Commercial Historic District which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places is composed of both architecturally and historically significant buildings. Dating from the 1870s to the early 1940s, the district represents the remaining vestiges of the late nineteenth and early twentieth century commercial structures in the downtown. The area continues to serve as a major financial, commercial center for San Jose. The district is composed of two city blocks located between East Santa Clara Street to the north, East San Fernando Street to the south, South Third Street to the east and South First Street to the west. The district continues on the south side of East Santa Clara between South Third and South Fourth Streets. District boundaries were determined by the historical limits of the downtown, architectural quality, and intrusion factors. Structures on adjacent blocks were not included as demolition and new construction has undermined the area's historical and architectural integrity.

The west side of South Third Street defines the district's eastern boundary, running between East Santa Clara and East San Fernando Streets. Lack of historical associations with the City's core and recent demolition eliminates the east side of South Third Street from the district. The north side of East San Fernando Street between South Third Street and South First Street defined the District's southern boundary. South First Street confines the western edge of the district and is immediately adjacent to the 1797 location of El Pueblo de San Jose de Guadalupe. East Santa Clara Street between First Street and Fourth Street delineates the district's northern boundary. Intrusions mar the northern side of East Santa Clara Street confining the district to the south side of the street.

Naglee Park

This residential neighborhood located just east of the San Jose State University campus is bounded by 11th Street on the west, Coyote Creek on the east, East Santa Clara Street on the north, and East William Street on the south. The 140-acre area was the estate of General Henry M. Naglee, a veteran of the Civil War. After his death, the General's heirs sold off the property, under the guidance of famed San Jose real estate developer T.S. Montgomery.

Construction of buildings probably began around 1904. Close proximity to the Central Business District and the University made Naglee Park a desirable place to live, and here most of San Jose's civic- and business-minded citizens resided during the early 1900s. Many of these homes were designed by architects. Today, the neighborhood is undergoing a transition; the recent down zoning of residential density has encouraged new families to move into the area. Rehabilitation and restoration activity is evident throughout the neighborhood.

Architecturally, the area has many fine early twentieth-century homes built in a variety of styles. Naglee Park is an excellent example of the evolution of house design from the early 1900s through the bungalow era, culminating with the Spanish Colonial Revival styles of the early twenties.

Because the neighborhood streets have remained virtually unchanged by new development over the years, the architecture of the area has good visual integrity. Few intrusions of incompatible design mar the neighborhood with the exception of the northern periphery where expansion of new office construction has intruded into Naglee Park.

Naglee Park appears to meet all the criteria for listing on the National Register of Historic Places as a district.

Hensley Historic District

This district was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1983. It is composed of the largest concentration of Victorian homes left in the central city area. Bounded by Second Street to the west, Empire Street to the north, Sixth street to the east, and Julian Street to the south, the area has a mix of single and multi-family uses. Many of the larger residences have been divided into flats and apartments.

Historically, the eastern side of the neighborhood was a part of the Hensley estate, bounded by First, Empire, and Fourth Streets with the Southern Pacific railway tracks serving as the southern edge of the property. Major Hensley settled here after 1849 when he left the gold fields. The property was subdivided in 1896; again with the services of T.S. Montgomery.

Architecturally, the houses represent some of the best examples of Italianate, Stick-Eastlake, and Queen Anne styles popular between the 1870s and 1890s. The neighborhood is made up of representative examples of the styles. The many larger and more elaborate homes located on north Third Street and the less elaborate workingmen's homes on North Fifth Street exhibit two interpretations of the styles on different scales.

St. James Square Historic District

This district was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1979 and became a City Historic District in 1984. It is composed of St. James Park itself and nine Classical style structures that face the Park. These structures are the old Main Post Office, Santa Clara County Courthouse, Letcher Garage, First Church of Christ Scientist, St. Claire Club, Scottish Rite Temple (now the San Jose Athletic Club), First Unitarian Church, Eagles Hall, and the Trinity Episcopal Church.

Because the Square is the only public square left in the City and because the important structures which face the park represent excellent examples of civic design from the decades between the 1860s and 1930s, the district easily met criteria for listing on the National Register of Historic Places.

Originally laid out in 1848 by Chester Lyman, the plan of St. James Park was revamped to include a pathway design and fountain in 1868. It has undergone a variety of changes since that time. The fountain, which was a central point in the layout of walkways through the park, was removed during the bisection of the park by Second Street in 1955.

Hanchett and Hester Park

This conservation area consists of the Hanchett and Hester Park neighborhoods, which were designed by John McLaren, the designer of Golden Gate Park. The neighborhoods are adjacent to one another with the boundaries being Mariposa Avenue to the south, Magnolia Street to the north, The Alameda to the east; and Park Avenue to the west. The neighborhoods have maintained a high level of architectural integrity through the years and represent a variety of styles including late turn-of-the-century Queen Anne styles, Craftsman bungalows, and Spanish Mission Colonial Revival Residences. In addition, several Prairie style homes are located in Hanchett Park. This style more typically is associated with Frank Lloyd Wright and the Midwest. Of particular interest is palm tree-lined Martin Avenue located just off The Alameda. This street contains some of the best mix of Prairie, Spanish Revival, and Craftsman styles found in San Jose. The residence park was surveyed in 1906 and was originally part of the fairgrounds. Interesting design features include the curb curvatures at the Martin Avenue intersections, which at one time had granite monuments in their centers.

The neighborhoods were easily served by trolley cars that ran between Santa Clara and downtown San Jose on the Alameda. They also traveled along Martin Avenue and Tillman Avenue to Park Avenue.

While both neighborhoods are included within one conservation area, it appears that Martin Avenue of the Hanchett Park neighborhood meets qualification for listing on the National Register as an important streetscape.

Palm Haven

This area consists of the Palm Haven neighborhood of Willow Glen and several adjacent streets including Bird and Coe Avenues. Palm Haven includes many homes from the 1930s and 1940s, and has been noted as a significant neighborhood for its excellence of design layout which has been tied together by the planting of palm trees along all the streets. The most impressive street is Palm Haven Avenue itself, bisected lengthwise by a grassy median planted with a row of palms and ending at a plaza with a triangular, grassy park area.

The north side of the intersection of Plaza and Coe Avenue is marked by a gateway leading into the subdivision. The residence immediately east of this gate was probably a model home judging from the similarity of design elements. Many of the homes of this early twentieth-century subdivision were architect-designed, attesting to the neighborhood's prominence within what was then the town of Willow Glen. This neighborhood does not appear to be threatened by development or zoning, yet its identification as an important cultural resource within San Jose should be recognized.

Located adjacent to Palm Haven are several smaller areas which contain a variety of important architectural resources which have been identified. Of particular concern are a number of important architecturally significant residences on Bird Avenue.

Alviso

This town, now annexed to the City of San Jose, is a National Register Historic District on the National Register of Historic Places. Historically, Alviso is one of the oldest towns in the County. It once was expected to become a great city. Because of its location on San Francisco Bay, Alviso was the major commercial shipping point for the entire south county until the late 1800s. The town was almost totally deserted, however, after the railroads diverted travel in 1865. Incorporated in 1852, Alviso is the site of the Bayside Cannery and the South Bay Yacht Club (1896). Both structures are still in use today. Because of its atmosphere resembling a small delta town, and because many of the old early town structures are still in existence, the character of Alviso is unique.
